CIA Imposter Gets $250 Fine

A San Pedro pharmacist who admitted posing as a Central Intelligence Agency agent was ordered to pay a $250 fine yesterday.

Judge James M. Carter of the U.S. District Court also put the defendant, Matthew John Mirkovich, 32, on probation for five years.

A federal indictment charged Mirkovich with tricking Dr. Carl L. Hubbs, a Scripps Institution of Oceanography professor, into giving him rare maps and documents while posing as a CIA agent.

25 YEAR RE-REVIEW
